

KEVIN D. HUFF, DDS, MAGD

Dr. Kevin Huff, a general dentist in Dover, Ohio, is a sought-after lecturer on the topic of oral mucosal screening techniques and related risk management, as well as dental ethics in treatment planning. He has lectured around the United States and in Canada and has published numerous articles in General Dentistry, Dentistry Today, Parkell Today, and Dental Economics, and has been interviewed for feature articles in Dental Products Report and Dental Economics. He holds the status of Master in the Academy of General Dentistry and has achieved the AGD's coveted Lifelong Learning and Service Recognition (LLSR) award. He is a Fellow in the International College of Dentists and has been a Clinical Instructor in the Department of Comprehensive Care at the Case School of Dental Medicine in Cleveland for over 13 years. He is also the Coordinator of Oral Mucosal Screening for the Mercy Medical Center Dental GPR Program in Canton, Ohio, and is Visiting Faculty for Spear Education in Scottsdale, Arizona.

A significant focus of Dr. Huff's interest is the application of ethical norms in treatment planning and decision-making. He has authored several articles on topics related to dental ethics in diagnosis and treatment planning. His lectures reflect his ideals of how patients should be treated as he would like to be treated. Dr. Huff has used or currently uses any products or techniques that he discusses. Although he may receive partial sponsorship from some companies discussed or recommended, he has no financial interest in any of them.
